

We need diversity of architects in our profession. Women bring voice and opinion and skills to clients and to projects at all stages and are an important part of any office.

In recent years our contribution has become more valued and the Government is even promoting more women in leadership roles because at last they can see the value that we can bring to society no matter what our role or profession. My mantra remains that ‘women and men together make great architecture and places to enhance peoples’ lives’.

Angela Brady
RIBA President
Founding Chair of WiA